Andersohn wins firm's award

FIRST AMERICAN TITLE

Richard P. Pauletich, president and CEO of First American Title Guaranty Co., has announced that Brad Andersohn has been selected to receive that company's William B. Morrish Award.

The award was established in honor of the company's founder, Bill Morrish, at his retirement in 1994. Each year it is given to the one person in the company who best epitomizes one or more of his qualities as a business leader. This year the criteria for the award is vision and perseverance.

Andersohn is branch manager and marketing representative for First American's Walnut Creek office and has been with the company since 1987, when he joined it as a customer services representative. A third generation title and escrow professional, Andersohn follows both his mother and his grandmother in working in that industry.

Andersohn chairs First American's marketing technology committee, which was formed at his suggestion to identify marketing and sales opportunities using technology.

The committee also makes technical recommendations to the company's management committee, based of feasibility and costs with an emphasis on measured results.

Brad lives in Concord with his wife, Debra Lee, and two children.
